Lem Allen's Luck.

At 8 o'clock yesterday morning, Lem Allen, of the Assembly, rose, washed his hands and face and said his prayers as usual, and then went down to breakfast. Then he went back to get an Assembly bill that he had forgotten, and was surprised to find his room occupied.

The landlord explained that about half an hour before a lady had been taken sick in the parlor. The other ladies in the hotel, ascertaining the cause of her illness, had taken her into Allen's room, as it was nearest, and she had there been delivered of a cunning little girl baby.

Allen retreated in good order and told the House that his Committee would need a little more time to report on several bills in their possession.

The lady came to the Ormsby yesterday morning. She is a French lady, and her husband has been informed of the event by wire.

Legislators Need Educating.

To a person coming from Hawthorne it is certainly surprising, to say the least, to here one Assemblymen after another get up and assert with the utmost gravity, that outside of Carson and Reno there are no gardens nor flowers nor trees nor shrubbery of any description in Nevada. Perhaps it would be well to start a fund for the purpose of educating legislators on their own State.—Hawthorne Bulletin.

The burning of a negro rape fiend in Texas by a slow fire and torturing him with red hot irons for an hour is the most horrible and sickening story that has come over the wires for many a day.
